Frequently Asked Questions: Salisbury Art Collection

1. Why is the collection being called the "Salisbury Art Collection"?

The name "Salisbury Art Collection" has been in use since the collection's inception, when it was first established at Salisbury State High School. This decision honours the collection's historical roots and reflects its origins.

2. What about Nyanda State High School's role in the collection?

Nyanda State High School played a significant role in preserving and displaying the collection for many years. This contribution is deeply valued and will be formally acknowledged in all materials and communications about the collection. For example, we will include statements such as:

fThe.Salisbury.Art.Collection?originally.established.at.Salisbury.State.High.School?was.
preserved.and.displayed.for.many.years.by.Nyanda.State.High.School?reflecting.the.

3. Why was there a consultation process?

The consultation process was an important opportunity to hear from the community and understand the depth of connection to this collection. The original name used for the collection reflects the collection's historical roots and is aligned with the feedback received in this process. The consultation has been invaluable in shaping how we honour and preserve this important cultural treasure moving forward.

4. How will the community's input be reflected in the collection's future?

The consultation process highlighted how much this collection means to the community, and we are committed to ensuring it remains accessible and celebrated. We are exploring opportunities to showcase the collection through events, exhibitions, and educational programs that will allow the community to engage with and celebrate this important legacy. Further details will be shared through school communications as they become available.

5. Where is the collection now?

The collection has been restored and is now housed at Yeronga State High School. This location was chosen to ensure the collection remains accessible to the Salisbury and Acacia Ridge communities.

7. How can I stay involved?

We welcome ongoing community involvement and input. If you have ideas for how we can celebrate the collection or would like to be involved in future events, please don't hesitate to reach out to us at principal@yerongashs.eq.edu.au.

8. What if I have concerns about the decision?

We understand that this collection holds deep meaning for many people, and we are committed to listening to your feedback. If you have any concerns or questions, please feel free to contact us directly at principal@yerongashs.eq.edu.au.

9. What's next for the Salisbury Art Collection?

Our focus is now on celebrating the collection and ensuring it continues to inspire and educate future generations. We are working on plans to regularly engage the students in the collection and will keep the community informed about opportunities to engage with this important cultural treasure.
